Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Plain View: Of the Case of Professor W. Robertson Smith One who, after long residence abroad, comes home to find his Church in a state of considerable excitement, and to some extent at war within itself, about a theological question that has suddenly arisen, can hardly help inquiring into the cause of the agitation around him. And any inquiry he may make is made at least with this advantage - that he can judge dispassionately with greater ease than those whose circumstances have tended to draw them into argument before the issues were clearly stated or fully understood. And if upon inquiry it appear to such a one that much of the excitement is unnecessary, it is his duty to do a little, if he can, to calm it, by stating the case as it appears to an outsider in the controversy. I make no other apology than that I find myself in some such position as this for the few remarks that follow on the case of Professor Smith - remarks to which...
