In their appearance they were repulsive, unclothed, their bodies covered with dirt; and as he stood looking at them he wondered if they could be human. While he was thus musing, a pole leaning against a tree was knocked down by a child, and struck one of his men on the head, hurting him severely. At once there went up from the women a generous and unaffected cry of pity, and their faces expressed so lively a sense of tender sympathy with the wounded man, that Mr. Stanley says: My human heart, keener than my eyes, saw through the disguise of filth and nakedness, the women s human hearts beating for another s suffering, and I recognized and hailed them as my own but...
